Admission of Alaska Makes Nation Greater Than Ever

been brought to a victorious conclu-

Rich in minerals, timber, fisheries, wildlife and scenic wonders the reason for the long delay in accepting the vast and strategic territory into the Union of States is one of the most mystifying political puzzles of the century.

As recently as 1952 the Senate refused Statehood for Alaska by the narrow margin of one vote. Grounds for the opposition have always been vague and while blamed on a Southern bloc in Congress, were supported by others who seemed more than anything to be against "change."

This apparently has finally been overcome principally because of the arrival of the atomic and space age, which has eventually convinced even the "diehards" that Alaska is no longer a remote icy wilderness. In fact, it is now only a short hop away by air and a very important outpost in our overall system of continental military defense.

Now that a precedent has been set, and the internal political barriers of so tion than ever.

While the change in status from an American territory to an official State is in a broad sense mostly psychological, inasmuch as both Alaska and Hawaii have been under the protective flag and rule of the government of the United States for many years, the removal of the many American residents therein from the "satellite" category to full-fledged citizenship is an important step ahead in world-wide influence.

The extension of voting privileges, laws and direct government under the Constitution to thousands more of our American citizens cannot help but increase their loyal enthusiasm and also expand the rate of progress and economic welfare of the State thus formed.

Texas will lose its distinction of being the largest State in the Union, and the starry field of Old Glory must needs be rearranged, and our history books brought up to date, but the United States is thereby a greater na-

It is Dr. Denney's goal that his pupils, some from within the industry itself, will be able to distinguish as many as 15 different components in a single odor when the course is completed.

He looks on the perfume compounder as a rare combination of chemist and artist. He must learn to recognize odors, create mix tures and be able to distinguish the components of given edors, "Users of perfumes seek definitely defined effects such as an attraction of the opposite sex, exhilaration, refreshment, or stimulation.

"The compounder must be aware of the effect of the oils he uses and create combinations attractive to America's ever variable public," he adds.

ALMOST SIMULTANEOUSLY, the American League called on Calvin Griffith of the Washington Senators to present a concrete proposal to transfer his franchise from the nation's capital and the National League went formally on record that it wants to return to New York City.

to New York City.

The American League's action means the Senators almost certainly will eventually leave Washington while the National League's means some team al most certainly will give New York City a franchise to replace the departed Dodgers and Giants.

THE AMERICAN League officially announced that "the Washington club did not request per-mission to transfer its franchise" but United Press International learned Griffith's request was rejected only because it was not concrete enough.

If Griffith can produce a "concrete proposal" at a more propi-tious moment it is almost certain it would be approved.

'Case,' 'Keef' To Match Wits July 9

Stengel Invited By Kefauver To Be Witness

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH United Press International WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, a giddy match-maker, to-day paired "Case" and the "Keef" for a legislative encounter which staggers the mind.

"Keef," of course, is Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.), slow-spoken chairman of the Senate Anti-monopoly subcommittee. The sub-committee is considering bills to exempt professional team sports from anti-trust laws.

'CASE" IS CASEY Stengel 'CASE' IS CASEY Stengel, double-talking manager of the New York Yankees. He has been invited to testify Wednesday on the exemption bills.

RANCHO MIRAGE

THUNDERBIRD AREA TONY BURKE FA West of Thunderbird C. 70-237 Highway 111 1/4 Mile

MYSTERY MAN Ed Mullins Jr., of Palm Desert Pharmacy, is crowned by Palm Desert Chamber of Commerce Lou Kuhner after he was unveiled as "Mr. Fun Fair" before an audience of more than 200 fair participants at the Shadow Mountain Club. Picture clues of the Fun Fair mystery man appeared in The Desert Sun prior to the big Independence Day program in a desert area prize contest. Contest winners were Emma Jane Ames, of Rancha Mich. contest. Contest winners were Emma Jane Ames, of Rancho Mirage, and Ethel Faulkner, of Cathedral City. The "crowning" highlighted a day-long Fourth of July program that featured game booths, a variety show, an hilarious "beauty contest," in which muscular males paraded in the garb of glamorous desert damsels; and a show-capping fireworks display at the Shadow Mountain Club.
